I am enclosing a research report listing the sources I checked for your ancestors. As you can see, I did not find Elizabeth J. Bush listed in any of our Vigo county cemetery books. Most of the information for those books was copied from the stones so, of course, any names on broken or unreadable stones were omitted. In addition, some cemeteries were not copied because of their size. I am enclosing a list of those. However, Calvary, Highland Lawn, and Roselawn were started after 1871. It's possible that Elizabeth was buried here but doesn't have a legible stone.

Indiana didn't begin keeping death records until 1882, which is too late for Elizabeth's death. Noah is not listed in the index to Vigo county deaths, and I wonder if he died elsewhere. The death records were not kept very carefully in the early years, but by 1901 they should have been fairly accurate.

I did find an 1878 marriage for a Noah Bush. Unfortunately the marriage records did not give much information until 1882.

We don't have a statewide index to the 1870 Indiana census. We have compiled our own index for Vigo county, but Noah and Elizabeth Bush aren't listed in it.

According to the Indiana Adjutant General's Report, Noah Bush enlisted in Co. E, 140th Regiment, on November 12, 1864. His residence was Martinsville, which is in Morgan county. I wonder if he returned to Morgan county after the Civil War and if Elizabeth died there. However, we have an 1874 directory of Morgan county, and Noah is not listed there. It's difficult to tell where your Bush family was in 1871.

The Indiana State Archives, 140 N. Senate Ave., Indianapolis IN 46204, has information on Indiana men in the Civil War. I am also enclosing a form which you can send to the National Archives for more information. However, it takes a long time to get a response from them.

If you would like copies of any of the items on the research report, our charge is 15¢ per page, plus postage.

I first found Lewis Bush listed in the 1904 Terre Haute city directory. He was a glassblower for the North Baltimore Glass Co. and roomed at 1605 Lafayette. In 1906 his occupation was given as "glassblower," no company listed, and he lived at 1209 S. 2nd. In 1907 and 1908 his occupation was the same, but he had a house at 1632 S. 9th. In 1910 he lived at the same address but was the assistant superintendent of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. In 1912-13 he was a glass-blower again, and in 1915-16 and 1918 he was listed as a glass worker. In 1920 his occupation was "car builder." Through 1927 he was listed as a driver, chauffeur, and agent. In 1929 he was not listed. If you would like copies of all the city directory pages, the charge would be $1.30, plus postage.

The North Baltimore Glass Co. existed from 1900 to 1926. Chapman Jay Root was their secretary from 1899 to 1901. In 1901 he established the Root Glass Co. In 1905 he started a second glass plant for the production of glass fruit jars, but in 1908 he sold it to the Ball Brothers of Muncie. In 1915 the Root Glass Co. designed and patented the Coca-Cola bottle. Root's fortune skyrocketed from that time and by 1932 it was the largest plant in the U.S. devoted exclusively to the manufacture of high pressure glass containers. The number of employees increased from 200 to 1,000. In 1932 the Root Glass Co. was merged with the Owen-Illinois Glass Co. and became an investment company of which Root was president until his death in 1945. Chapman J. Root's grandson, Chapman S. Root, inherited his estate.

Owen-Illinois closed the local plant in 1948 and converted it into a warehouse. In 1960 the Wheaton Glass Co. of Millville NJ purchased the property and re-activated it for glass manufacture. Corporate changes brought two new names--American-Wheaton Glass Co. and American Can Co.-Glass Division. In 1968 American sold the company to Midland Glass; it became Anchor Glass in 1983 and closed in 1984.

DO NOT CIRCULATE

I am enclosing copies of a couple articles about glassblowers and the designing of the Coke bottle. Judging from the reminiscences of retired glassblower William Prescott, the glassblowers had hard lives. We have quite a file on the Root Glass Co. and the Coke bottle. We could probably copy all the city directory pages and much of the information in the file for $5.00.

re: Bush Historical Information

Gentlemen:

I am working on a history of the Bush family, part of which is set in Terre Haute at the turn of the century. There are two details which I am trying to check on.

It is my understanding that an ancestor, Lewis D. Bush worked as a glass blower at the Root Glass Company in Terre Haute from roughly 1898 to 1910 when the plant became automated. He made hand-blown Coca-Cola bottles. If city directories are available for 1. that period and list occupations, could you confirm the starting year and the ending year for that work? Later, Lewis worked for Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, and also operated the Hobit movie theater, where an early feature was "The Perils of Pauline."

The second inquiry is information on the glass company, 2 itself, in the pre-automated era around 1905. Possibly, there is a published local history which could provide information on that company; or you may have newspaper clippings on it. I have no idea how big it was, how many bottles a day a glass blower could blow, or whether it still exists. Anything which you can provide will be most appreciated. Please advise as to any research or photocopying expenses incurred. Thank you for your assistance.

Very truly yours,

Milton W. Bush, Jr.

400 of The Bush Clan Rendezvous With History

The descendants of five brothers who settled in Clark County now live in all parts of the world

By PAUL HUGHES

THE BUSH FAMILY held another of its annual reunions in Winchester this month. Family reunions are not out of the ordinary, but when the Bush family gets together, it makes an imposing gathering. Not only because the 400-odd persons who gather comprise farmers, lawyers, businessmen, teachers, preachers, housewives and the like. The important fact is that all these people are descended from the five Bush brothers of Clark County—men who came into Kentucky from Virginia 175 years ago to make their homes.

Now the family left by the five—Phillip, John, William, Ambrose and Francis Bush—is scattered over the whole face of the earth. There is hardly a state in the union that does not have its share of the family: of the clan that gathered at Forest Grove Church near Winchester this year, there were relatives from 19 states. But they all look to Clark County and that territory adjacent to Fort Boonesboro as their original home.

The Bush descendants and their relatives have been gathering almost every year for a long time. But this year's celebration was the biggest in recent memory. It was sparked by a movement to restore and mark some of the principal landmarks connected with the family's history. Mrs. William G. Kagin, a historian and genealogist although not a Bush herself, reported in her address on Bush history that Winchester's Hart Chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution plans to mark the grave of William "Captain Billy" Bush, doughty Indian foe and friend of Daniel Boone.

Clifford H. Bush, 83, Indianapolis, one of the veterans in attendance, presided at the church session that preceded the noonday dinner spread in old-fashioned style and plenitude on tables in a grove beside the church. In the afternoon there was the traditional pilgrimage to the Boonesboro countryside where the five Bush brothers cleared, farmed, milled and traded, raised their flocks of livestock and children and kept their rifles handy at all times.

Providence Baptist Church, reputedly the oldest church structure in continuous use in Kentucky, was constructed in 1793 by the Bushes and the congregation settling with them.

Captain Billy was a companion of Daniel Boone

The Bush brothers appear to have come into Kentucky in 1785 to settle on land previously spied out and chosen by their brother, the famed "Captain Billy." He had first come into the new country with Daniel Boone in 1775.

William had returned to his old Virginia home in Orange County about 1780, bringing back glowing descriptions of fertile land, wooded hills full of game and beautiful river scenery. Some 40 families from Orange and Culpeper Counties, mostly Baptists, were persuaded to migrate. In the summer of 1780 they set out.

By December, the colony, which had organized a Baptist Church and had held services along the way under direction of Elder John Vivion, reached the Holston River near where Abingdon now stands. While there, a messenger from Captain Billy at Boonesboro brought a warning that Indian trouble made it advisable for the travelers to remain where they were for the time being.

The company was by then joined by the Rev. Robert Elkin, an ordained Baptist minister. They remained on the Holston until 1783, or long enough to plant and harvest three crops, and were joined by other emigrants. During this stay Elkin was installed as pastor for the Baptist flock, a post he held for 42 years.

It isn't a certainty but a strong probability that Captain Billy made it to the Holston to escort the party through the remainder of the wilderness trudge. The colony, perhaps 200 strong, made its way across the mountains and followed Boone's trail to Lewis Craig's station on Gilbert's Creek in Kentucky's Lincoln County. Here most of the company remained until November, 1785, or about two years.

Tables at the outing were arranged to allow free access to ham, chicken, cake, pie and iced tea. More than 400 were present at the reunion and they came from 19 states.

From Craig's Station some moved on into the Barrens to the southwest, but the majority seem to have turned northeast to Boonesboro and then spread out along the reaches of Lower Howard's Creek from the stockade to near where Winchester now stands. These were the lands picked by Captain Billy, and it was at his house that the congregation in the new settlement held its first meeting.

AT ONE time so large a part of the population of the country north of the Kentucky and adjacent to Fort Boonesboro in Clark County was made up of the Bush family that the area was known generally as "Bush Settlement." The Bush kith and kin still constitute an important segment of the population. There are 33 Bush listings alone in the Winchester telephone directory. In addition there are Quisenberrys, Henrys, Haggards, Conkwrights, Clarks, Hodgkins, Carmans, Foxes, Couchmans, Beans, Bottses, Fishers, Prathers, Hudgins and Parishes and others, too, all tracing lineage to one or more of the five brothers. One of these is Boswell Hodgkin, now State school superintendent, who attended the reunion.

Larger families are and have been a tradition in this clan, together with early marriages. The family is of English descent. Some trace it back to William Bushe in 1257 during the reign of Henry III. But there was a John Bush of St. Thomas Parish, Orange County, Va., whose will was probated in 1746, and whose son Phillip Bush died in 1772. This Phillip was the father of the five Bushes who started the family in Clark County.

He had 12 children, most of whom moved to Kentucky. Of the part of the family in "the Barrens," Sarah Bush was the second wife of Thomas Lincoln, the father of Abraham, and Christopher Bush is mentioned as on Thomas Lincoln's marriage bond.

Of immediate interest here are the five sons and a daughter who settled in Clark County. Phillip, eldest, was born in 1736 and it is told that he courted a Virginia girl who rejected him to marry Col. John Vivion. However, she promised that Phillip might marry her daughter if she should have one. That's what happened: when Phillip was about 40 years old he was married to Frances Vivion, then 18 or 20.

John Bush, born 1742, was twice married, first to Nancy or Elizabeth Watson, the second time to Polly Tillman.

William, or Captain Billy, whose gravestone near the Old Stone Meeting House describes him as "the friend and companion of Daniel Boone in the settlement of Ky.," married Frances Tandy Burris, a sister of Jane Burris, the first wife of the Rev. James Quisenberry. Captain Billy, who seems to have been the most picturesque of the five brothers, not only fought Indians with Boone but served under General George Rogers Clark in the campaign to win the Northwest Territory from the British. He died in 1815 after fruitless quests for the elusive Swift's silver mine and with but relatively few of the many hundreds of acres of land he once had owned.

Ambrose Bush, born 1747, married Lucy Golson, or Gholson.

Francis Bush, born 1750, was twice married —to Mary Brian, or Bryant, and Rachel Martin—and had six daughters and two sons. One of his descendants was John H. Reagan, one of the founders of the Republic of Texas, then the Confederacy's postmaster general and finally representative and senator from Texas.

The only sister of the five brothers known to have settled in Clark County was Mary Bush, who became Mrs. Robin Richards.

A granddaughter of Ambrose Bush, Mrs. Julia Tevis, in 1825 founded Science Hill School, a girls' school at Shelbyville for more than a century.

Re: JACOB ANTHONY BUSCH FAMILY

Dear Sir:

I am asking Don Van Winkle to research my father's family, Wm. Henry Busch and grandfather Jacob A. Busch.

Jacob A. Busch and his three brothers, Adam, John and the third brother(I have forgotten his name) all came from Germany and settled in the midwest.

My father was born at Covington, Ky. 1856 later the family moved to Mattoon, Illinois then to Hot Springs, Ark about 1900.

About 1936 you had a clipping regarding a Busch Family Reunion I am a graduate of ISTC) and I was sure that this article pertain-to my family also. If you could make a copy of whatever material you have on hand of the Busch or Bush family and mail it to me I shall be happy to reimburse you.

John Bush, Bedford, Indiana is also a relative of my Father but they dropped the "C" in their name during WW I

My father had five sister and five brothers, Isabelle, Clara, Oma, Emma and Bertha, Louis T., Richard, John Jacob I have forgotten the other one. My father and grandfather were carpenters.

I have four sisters and six brothers.

Thank you kindly for four prompt attention.

Dear Miss Crawford

I am intrested in having my family tree traced on my father's, Wm Henry, side.

Could you and would you at your convenience trace the family?

When my father was very small, my grandparents moved to Mattoon, Ill. where they lived until about 1900. at that time they moved to Hot Springs, Ark. where they my three single aunts and Uncle Louis all passed away.

Grandpa's other three brothers were in Ohio the last word he had from them.

I am hoping Shelby to the St Louis Browns. I really had a rough time earning a league from S.L.J.C. 1926. I supported myself beginning with eighth grade through High School and College.

I trust you will have favorable news for me. I am enclosing all the information I have.

Very truly,
Emma A. Busch.
